battle caused serious damages to our boats. Their repair held up the construction of other boats.

Germany had decided to live up to international law and not sink merchantmen without warning, continued Von Capelle, but he said he thought in the fall of 1915 the admiralty had issued a second order to attack British ships because England, "poisoned against us." had made the work of U-boats very difficult by mines which covered the cutire North sea. There was a demand for mine-searchers, torpedo boats, and motor boats, which further reduced U-boat construction, he added.

Herr Sinsheimer attempted to elicit the exact purpose of the submarine campaign against England—whether it was the intention to crush England or merely to compol her to agree to a "usable peace."

Von Capelle rèplied:

"The expression can be interpreted in several ways. I interpreted it to mean making England pliable and war-tired."

Had Ingredients For Toddy All But A Little Sugar

Woe has befallen the prosperous little town of Somerville. Tenn.

Tis a sad, sad story, but vouched for by none other than the Hon. Chas. A. Stathback, whose veracity is unquestioned.

Stainback, whose veracity is unquestioned.

At the base of all the trouble is the scarcity of sugar. You may say that Somerville is not alone in the general shortage of sugar, but that is only a part of the story.

It seems that despite the edict of the congress of the United States that thirsts for anything stronger than water should be cast into the discard, that Somerville, or at least one of the leading legal lights of that community, still remembers the refreshing long toddies of days gone by.

Through some act of Providence there is apparently on hand in Somerville all of the pecessary ingredients.

there is apparently on hand in Somerville all of the pecessary ingredients of an old-fashioned long toddy, federal and state laws notwithstanding. The owners of these precious articles were congratulating themselves upon their spiendid luck or foresight, whichever it may be, when the sugar shortage put in an appearance.

Somerville merchants were not anxious to offer sugar to their customers at 25 cents per pound owing to the existence of a recent federal law which defines profiteering. But they were forced to pay 21 and 22 cents per pound to the Memphis wholesalers and as a last resort told their troubles to their attorney, the aforesaid Chas. A. Stainback.

their attorney, the aforesaid Chas. A. Stainback.

Things had reached a critical stage so Mr. Stainback communicated with Wm. D. Kyser, United States attorney at Memphis, laying all of the facts before him and with the query as to whether or not 25 cents per pound would be considered profiteering. Concluding his tale of woe Mr. Stainback ventures the information that "there isn't enough sugar in Somerville to sweeten a toddy."

Mr. Kyser had advised Mr. Stainback that sugar purchased for 22 cents per pound without violating the profiteering act but the district attorney also is anxious to ascertain the whereabouts of the remaining ingredients of a long toddy that Mr. Stainback hints very strongly are to be procured within the confines of Somerville.

Tuesday won an exciting automobile race to the local jail from two machines laden with a smed men intent on lynching the black who is alleged to have killed C. O. Craft, a min superintendent, in Stonewall, Tuesday morning.

Marshal Crane arrived at the jail but two minutes ahead of the two other cars, which came from another direction in an effort to head him off. When the pursuers reached the jail the doors were tightly barred and they were refused admittance. Marshall killed Craft, it is said, following a reprimand by the latter regarding some work the negro was doing.
